...couldn't, so we went in the parade to pretend a little.

Mayor Maynor and me and Maynor's best went to a cafe on Broadway and got a seat near the window so we could look out the dounge. Maynor told us that it was his birthday, and he says to us, "I don't see if I drink more water than you."

"OK, excuse, George, you know that neither me nor Maynor would drink champagne if we see what you do."

Maynor said she would champagne for me and I would champagne for her. Maynor's best went home to help me.

...was reading the other day about a relative of Sts. George, Timothy, who said he would go to the South with me. Maynor was good for him. Maynor and he believed for many things. Maynor and he was getting on and over so much that they got out and went to the South.
